Little Children in Orphans' Homes Certain That Santa Will Not Forget

BY WILLIAM O. KEY JR.

It is all so different now. Instead of dwindling into the dim and hazy limbo of forgotten traditions, Christmas exerts a stronger influence now than it did years ago. This year, more than ever, at orphans' homes in Atlanta, the spirit of the season manifests itself—just as if these little folks were not motherless and fatherless. All of them know that Santa Claus will come.

They are bright-eyed and eager.

Santa Claus will come.

They have written their letters to Santa, and there is about them the confidence that cannot be denied.
They just know Christmas is coming, and with it everything that children their mothers and fathers.

"What is Santa Claus going to bring you?" The question was popped suddenly at a little girl of 5, as she walked up the pathway to this particular orphans' home.

"A sleepy dell, a dell bed and a little red chair." she popped right back. No hesitation, no doubt. She knows that she will be remembered this Christmas.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Sidney Lenz and Oswald Jacoby, with their official system of contract bridge, gained ground on Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson and the Culbertson system in the second session of their challenge match which ended at 12:22 this morning

After ten rubbers of the series had been played Lenz and Jacoby were 2,075 points in the lead, a gain of 360 points from what they acquired in the first session of the match. Seven rubbers were played in the second session, in contrast to three of the first.

We had stronger forces to counterattack than we held on the previous session, so that the second skirmish in the battle of the century ended with only a slight margin of 360 points advantage in favor of our opponents. The plan to "bump Boykin off" was first told to Governor Russell in a letter bearing on the Saunders clemency application and came out at a formal hearing Tuesday when attorneys, a number of ministers and personal friends of the former councilman asked the commission to recom mend a remission of the two-year rison sentence upon payment of the $1,000 fine imposed at the same time.

Some weeks ago, the solicitor-general informed the commission-after explaining that he had not planned refer to the assassination plot until after it had been mentioned by A. E. Clemency Opposed.

In vigorously protesting against the clemency sought, the solicitor-general told the commission he was opposed to "meddling with what the courts have done." Attorneys, including Senator John Wesley Weekes, presented a petition with 1,500 names in behalf of Saunders.

While Atlanta was experiencing its first real winter weather of late 1931, other sections of the south also were hit by the cold wave. Rain fell over the entire territory south of Mason and Dixon's line, and lower tempera-tures were the outlook generally throughout Dixie.

Eich Pardon Opposed.

Solicitor-General Boykin Tuesday also registered his opposition to a pardon for Ernest Eich, serving a 7-to-12 year sentence for slaying his 17-year-old wife in a Washington street rooming house in 1929.

The petition was presented by Len B. Guillibeau, attorney for Eich, and met emphatic protest from Mrs. C. D. Barrett, mother of the victim. The commission also took this case under advisement.

Coastal Co-ordinating Body Backs Cross-Peninsula Canal Proposal

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 8.—
(P)—Delegates from four southeastern states—Georgia, the Carolinas and Florida—met here today for the purpose of discussing the promotion of the political, civic and industrial interests of their respective states at the second regular meeting of the coastal co-ordinating organization.

Forty or more representatives crowded into six hours of intensive deliberations work that required several days at the first meeting of the organization.

The keynote of the gathering, sounded in nearly every address, was cooperation and co-ordination of effort.
One of the principal resolutions adopted at today's meeting pledged the organization to the support of efforts to bring about construction of this territory to invest their money and make their homes.

One of the outstanding addresses of the day was by Howard Coffin, chairman of the board of the Sea Island Company, Brunswick, Ga., and widely identified in financial circles of the country. He urged co-operation and unified efforts in developing and building up this territory.

The origin of the fire has not been determined. Some insurance was car ried on the plant.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 8,—(P)— Governor Theodore G. Bilbo today an incomplete paragraps for 23 offenders in unified efforts in developing and building up this territory.

Committees appointed were: Aviation development, M. O. Dunning, Savannah, chairman: Howard Coffin, Brunswick; Mayor L. B. Owens, Columbia; Clarence Koester, Charlotte, and T. C. Imeson, Jacksonville.

"Selling the south to the rest of the country," Mr. Coffin, chairman: "prominent citizens."

One of the principal resolutions adopted at today's meeting pledged the organization to the support of efforts to bring about construction of a proposed cross-peninsula ship canal, "regardless of the route that may be decided upon by United States army engineers."

Other resolutions included:

Authorization of the president to appoint a committee consisting of one man from each of the four states and a fifth to be chairman to co-operate with the Eastern Air Transport Company in developing air mail and air passenger transportation and building airports.

Creating a standing committee to investigate rate problems affecting various member cities.

Authorization of appointment of a "sales committee" to study ways and means to create in the minds of peoples of the world a desire to move to this territory to invest their money and make their homes.

The Emerald-Hodgson hospital, operated by the University of the South, was gutted by fire early tonight, with an estimated loss of $125,000.

The building, of stone and brick, contained 80 rooms. The nurses, assisted by the students of the university succeeded in removing all patients from the building without injury to any. They were placed in private homes. During the rescue work some of the students were overcome by heat and smoke, but were promptly revived.

The origin of the fire has not been determined. Some insurance was carried on the plant.

Another group which began conferences today was the executive council of the railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor.

Bett M. Jewell, head of this conference, said "there are several ways of them. Their adoption would make the proposed wage cut unnecessary." Jewell declined to say what the alternatives were.

The ruling by the interstate commerce commission late yesterday, permitting the railroads to increase certain of their freight rates, had little apparent effect on the union meetings.

D. B. Robertson, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, said he believed the carriers would still demand a reduction.

SPAIN WILL VOTE ON NEW LAWS TODAY

MADRID, Dec. 8.—(P)—Cabinet ministers and minority leaders of the national assembly agreed today to postpone the formal vote of adoption of the new constitution until tomorrow, when the document will be presented with defense bills tacked on it. The defense measures, which would become part of the constitution until a new law for the maintenance of public order could be passed, or until they were rescinded, were attacked by some deputies today as "worse than martial law." The measures were defended by Provisional President Manuel Azana.

Constitutional Provisions Outlined by Spanish Leader

Editor's Note: Spain, last of the Bourbon monarchies, will vote on her new republican constitution today. Niceto Alcala Zamora, who is expected to be the first president, tells in this apecially written article just what sort of government Spanish statesmen have fashioned. He tells of the compromises effected to separate church from state, to gain votes for long-sheltered Spanish women, and to guard against too great power by president or parliament. He clares both private property and labor's rights have been protected.

out of office with due process by a consenting quorum.

The level-headedness and vision of the Spanish people already have been proved. In the revolution the people gave the whole world an example of their love for peace. This has been shown again and again in our long history of compromises, and in the peaceful solution of our problems.

The social phases of the constitution should not inspire any fears, as it is respectful toward private property and it opens an ample horizon of pacific evolution for the morrow with its resolute protection to labor and with its return of crown proper-easy to note the influence of constitutions of the most modern republics of Europe and America. This was specially true of the German and the Mexican constitutions.

The Mexican influence seems to have been a rebirth of the old traditions of Spanish liberties, and as an example of it we see in the new constitution the importance given to the presidency and the supreme court.

North American influence is notice—Missouri Pacific railway officials said North American influence is noticeable in the supremacy of the constitution, the possible federal organization of the several provinces of Spain, and the restrictive system of reforms to the fundamental law.

Missouri Pacific railway officials said today they had failed to determine the whereabouts of Burton Wilson, attorney for Russell Sherwood, known as "business manager" for Mayor James J. Walker, of New York

A stamp of originality also is noted in the constitution, especially in the full freedom given by the assembly from the beginning to the heterogeneous government, so that the government might solve various existing problems.

The clause prohibiting religious orders to engage in teaching or industries may be able to survive, although it may cause the imposition of severe precautions. Another compromise was the permission to celebrate religious activities outside the churches.

It was impossible to come to a compromise on the matter of whether there should be a bicameral or unicameral government.

LEGION DEMANDS INCREASED AID

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.-(P)-The American Legion wants additional expenditures for veterans of over $25,000,000 yearly despite warnings from the president that the federal pocketbook is very lean.

A prohibition referendum, as advo-cated by the last national convention at Detroit, and increase of the navy to its maximum strength under the ndon naval treaty, also are on the In his message to congress Mr.

Hoover today said veterans' relief cost more than $1,000,000,000 last year and he felt this was no time to be adding to such a formidable sum. Almost as his words were being read at the capitol, however. Harry L. Stevens, Legion commander, appeared at the White House and handed the chief executive a program call-administration.

Hines told congress it would have to dig deeper into the attenuated treasury wallet if it sends more veterans to government hospitals.

Commenting that it seemed the policy of the government to give hospital treatment to veterans regardless of treatment to veterans, regardless of what caused the illness, Hines said if that attitude continued "the existing authorized government facilities will have to be materially increased to meet future demands."

In addition to the $25,000,000, the Legion program called for an appropriation of about $40,000,000 for hospital construction. Stevens was in-formed of the president's representa-tions on expenditures for ex-service men.

"We intended to ask this anyway."
the Legion commander said, pointing out that the organization was not asking for government funds to take care of able-bodied veterans.

President Hoover last year unsuccessfully opposed increasing the loan value of veterans' certificates and today General Hines gave figures on what the raises had taken from the

what the raises had taken from the treasury.

He said that more than $866,984.922 was loaned to veterans on their certificates during the past fiscal year, bringing the total outstanding to $1,087,195.525.

From another source today came word that the government must have more money before it can meet the demands for loans.

Chairman Byrns, of the house appropriations committee, said it planned to appropriate immediately $200.000.000 for loan purposes. He said the veterans' administration had recommended it and that applications were being held up because funds were lacking.

AS PERU'S LEADER

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 8.—(P)—Lieutenant Colonel Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, former provisional president, was inaugurated constitutional president of Peru today.

He returned to power amid the acclaim of a crowd that filled the streets, after having been deposed as provisional president last March. This time he took office by virtue of popular election, whereas before he gained it by a revolution against former President Leguia.

The president and his cabinet were sworn in before the assembly shortly after noon, while army planes flew over Lima, and Peruvian battleships at Callao fired a 21-gun salute. Then he reviewed the Lima garrison and received an ovation from the people, while women watched from the balconies and flowers rained down upon his carriage.

CO-ORDINATION URGED ON RIVER PROJECTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(P)—
Co-ordination of flood control and navigation projects was urged on the national rivers and harbors congress today by Representative Wilson, of Louisiana, new chairman of the house flood control committee.

He told the 27th annual convention of the congress that the two problems are linked on virtually every inland waterway.

Wilson said navigation and flood control should go hand in hand along the 14.000 miles of the Mississippi river system.

Decrease of 25 to 30 Per Cent Cut Shown by Re-

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—
The gross income of the American farmer for 1931 will be from 25 to 30 per cent less than that of 1930, and from 40 to 45 per cent less than that of 1929, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde estimated in his annual report to the president today.

In 1929, American farm products, including live stock and dairy products, brought a total of about $11.911,000,000. the secretary reports. Last year the total dropped to about $9,347,000,000. On the basis of information now obtainable, the head of the department of agriculture states that the total this year "may be less than $7,000,000,000."

But as farm incomes have shrunk, both farm acreage and farm population have increased, Secretary Hyde states.

"It is against this that I, as a responsible statesman, turn most sharply."

After asserting that "filled with passionate yearning to bring Germany back to peace and freedom" he took the reins of government, and that he was forced to ignore partisan wishes, Dr. Bruening made this pledge:

"I shall in the future also oppose by all constitution means partisan attempts to divide the German people into two opposing camps."

He warned his hearers that it was dangerous in the time of the fatherland's supreme need to "awaken an impression abroad as though in Germany there were a divided front, yes even a government of tomorrow which could arrogate to itself the right to per cent super-duties.

At the same time, the chamber of deputies defeated the Laval government, 325 to 261, on a proposal to levy an import tax of 2 per cent on raw materials, 4 per cent on partially manufactured goods, and 6 per cent on manufactured products.

This measure, which was not made a question of confidence, and so does a question of confidence, and so does ment."

This measure, which was not made a question of confidence, and so does not affect the life of the government, was turned down apparently because the deputies feared it would send up the cost of living.

Following much newspaper comment during the last few days about "tariff war" with Great Britain, the commerce ministry declared the British government had "made a mistake" in establishing high duties.

"We regard England as a friend," a ministry spokesman said, "but even friends sometimes make mistakes."

France, it was said, intends to find other markets so far as possible and to increase her own consumption of certain products hit by the new English duties.

"After all," the ministry spokesman said, "English exports to France are small, and high French tariffs would affect only a few items and so would not help the French producers who are momentarily hurt."

It was implied that France has received information to the effect that England is dissatisfied with present conditions and may voluntarily reduce her rates, thus eradicating the threat of tariff war.

The French 15 per cent super-duties

The emergency decree just signed, the explained, was predicated upon the constitutionally appointed government."

Defends Self.

Chancellor Bruening defended himself for maintaining a long silence in the face of opposition attacks.

"I have been reproached for remaining silent too long," he said. "After all, the duty to work conscientiously seems to me greater than that of talking, and I am confident the German people support objective earnestness.

"I shall not attempt with promises all, understood that in time of distress the masses are inclined to chase phantoms.

"But wishes do not constitute a political program," he warned. "If Germany's political leadership were to ward the temptation to cure the lills of the present by emphasizing unatatianble goals it would be the end of Germany."

He began his 20-minute radio talk with a review of the world situation. Only in the second half of the speech addid he accept the full

The French 15 per cent super-duties were established after England went off the gold standard and before the recent 50 per cent anti-dumping measurement 50 per cent anti-dumping recent 50 per cent anti-dumping measures in Britain became effective.

The radical socialists were among the principal opponents of the tariff measure defeated in the chamber today. Its chief supporter was Franciois Pietri, minister of the budget.

"A fear of reprisals has been expressed," Mr. Pietri said, "but it is my impression that the reprisals took place beforehand."

Although the budget winds.

In what seemed to be a reference to France, the chancellor declared that Turning to the negotiations on the reparations problem now being held at Basel, Dr. Bruening said:

"I most solemnly appeal to all the governments concerned to see to it that the oft proclaimed and generally accepted principles of sympathetic cooperation now, at last, in the eleventh hour, be translated into deeds."

Only by international understanding, he said, can the crisis be solved, and meanwhile every country must shift for itself isters who have been preaching total disarmament from their pulpits. It was said at the meeting that the task of 'the church was simply to foster truth and human fellowship, good relations between neighboring nations. Of course this is the task of the church. But it may well be asked how the church in general can do this without taking action against a nefarious traffic which kills, smothers and utterly destroys the last vestiges of human fellowship.

Was is the exact opposite of love of one's neighbor. What we know from the last war ought to make it plain that war-hysteria and war-psychosis wounds the truth, as revealed in Christ, at every turn. Politics shouldn't be permitted to give tone to the church's action, that is true enough. The church occupies itself with God's commandments that the church may point out, prophetically, what possibilities may be achieved if God's commandments are obeyed. Politics know nothing of the venture-someness of faith. Therefore, politics should not expect adhesion from the church, but inspiration.

A Christianity that reconciles itself with the idea of war is a fallen Christianity. It does not merit credence or prestige any longer. We have all been guilty of this fall and we have all contributed to it. But we magnify this guilt-if we do not acknowledge it as guilt. We must work up the moral courage to call an evil thing evil, and not compromise with it. And nothing in this world is a greater complex of injustice, cruelty, immorality, hatred and lies than the thing commonly known as war.

From the books of Boris Pilniak, the Russian writer whose book is now available in translated form, both in English and French, one gains an idea English and French, one gains an idea how life is going on in the soviet union. His latest, "The Volga Falls in the Caspian Sen," is an excellent document and it is not surprising that the soviet authorities are not very well pleased with what Pliniak writes. His criticism is devastating. One wonders how the men and women he depicts are to be the ushers-in of a new era in history and in human relationships.

Some of the officials he pictures Some of the officials he pictures are out-and-out secoundrels, without the slightest respect for human life or for human morality. Pilniak makes one of them say: "When the last calory of morality has been exhausted, individuals like we appear in the world." They respect nothing and no man. Man changes into a thing in their mentality. Man is a means to an end to them. This is the very opposite of our view based on Christhian ethics, where man and the perfection of man is the chief aim, and the happy perfected man the end of all our efforts.

make American medicine great.

Isn't it always a pleasure to watch a nartist at work, especially one who has conceived and developed his own idea, plan or technic? It is to me. Probably the anticipation of some such pleasure was what caused me to go and see a master of his craft using diathermy for the extirpation of tonsils. When the first rumors of this pioneer's work came to my ear (I have only one, but it's a keen one) L dismissed it as some new scheme of quackery to cafeth the ever credulous customer. But still I took the first occasion that presented itself to visit the doctor and see his work. I went to scoff, I tell you. But I had picked the wrong man. I recognized that as soon as I saw him at work.

Not just the actual application of diathermy, but every step of his preparation and his after-care, and particularly his gentle patience in the management of timid patients and his kindness in all his dealings with them. This is a gift of the true physician. I never had it, as carnestly as I tried. Many doctors lack it. I don't know just what it is—unusual patience, kindness, tenderness, understandingness, perhaps a combination of all these. At any rate, I am grateful for the impulse that led me to go and see this master physician at work. The inspiration I found there in his office has contributed a good deal toward the establishment of this modern humane method in American practice. Notwithstanding the atrocious antagonism of the rank and file of entrenched nose and throat specialists to the introduction of this method as an alternative to the crude and dangerous major operation of tonsillectomy, the new methed has alternative to the crude and dangerous major operation of tonsillectomy, the new methed has alternative to the crude and dangerous major operation of tonsillectomy, the new methed has alternative to the crude and dangerous major operation of tonsillectomy, the new methed has alternative to the crude and dangerous major operation of tonsillectomy, the new methed has alternative to the crude and FORT MYERS, Fla., Dec. 8.-(A) PORT MYERS, Fla, Dec. 8.—(A) Plans for immediate resumption of operations of the Old Southern Sugar Company plant, with employment for 3,500 men, went forward today after Circuit Judge George W. Sale of the Southern Sugar Company assets to J. W. Moran and Louis B. Warren, for the reorganization managers, Bitting, Inc., of New York, went forward yesterday and only the technicality of the court's signature remained today. The sale price for the properties was $900,000. In addition the reorganizers assumed $3,500,000 obligations of the old-company.

Immediately following signing of the order of sale, the executive committee and board of directors of the reorganized concern met and elected method as an alternative to the crude and dangerous major operation of tonsillectomy, the new method has already commanded adoption or acceptance by a majority of the better physicians of the country, and the very antagonists who most brazenly pronounced it "no good" a year ago are now making themselves ridiculous by trying to give the diathermy method of removing tonsils a kind of half-hearted approval.

The pioneer whose work I saw and described in this column is Dr. Lewis J. Silvers, of New York city. He is the recognized leader in his field in this country. His scientific contributions on the subject of diathermy in nose and throat surgery are now eagerly sought by our medical societies and their official medical journals, and have served to establish this

BOARD'S APPROVAL

City Education Group To Recognize Credits of Local University.

Approving Oglethorpe University credits where one-half of the work was done before September 1, 1931, the Atlanta board of education, in session Tuesday afternoon, considered the following matters:

1. Declined to take any action on a proposal to restrict employment of future employes of the board to residents of Atlanta, as an aftermath of failure of council Monday to take any drastic action against those who reside outside the city limits.

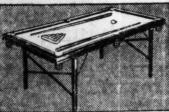

2. Referred to the rules committee.

3. Praised W. W. Gaines, president of the board of education, who retires January 1 as a member of the board; Miss Mary Postell, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of elementary schools, and Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the schools committee of council. Gaines and Gilliam were given a rising vote of thanks for their services, and Miss Postell was made assistant superintendent emeritus of the school system. She retired effective December 1.

AFFIRMED BY COURT

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 8.—(P)—
Professor Elisha Kent Kane III was alternately pictured as a "philanderer and a Lothario" and as a "kind and considerate husband" today in his trial on charges of drowning his wife at a Grandview beach, on Chesapeake bay.

The descriptions were given by opposing attorneys in opening statements after the athletic young University of Tennessee professor had pleaded "not guilty" in stentorian tones in answer to the indictment. Kane contends the drowning was accidental.

W. C. Graham, father of Mrs. Jenny Graham Kane, the dead woman, described Professor Kane as a man who cursed his wife at night and treated her with an attitude of devotion during the day. 3-Day Relief-No Operation Social Service Index Will Supply Names of Those Most in Need of Help.

Assurance to Atlanta that Christmas bounty will be applied where it is most greatly needed was given Thesday with arrangement completed by Miss Mary Ansley, secretary of the Social Service Index, to open again the Christmas Clearing House.

Through her connection with the Social Service Index, which is the Community Chest's department of records, Miss Ansley is enabled to supply names of needy families to those seeking to make Christmas gifts in homes where otherwise there would be no remembrances at the holiday time. Individuals, clubs, church and civic groups, and others planning distribution of Christmas gifts are asked to utilize the services of the Christmas Clearing House, calling Miss Ansley for that purpose at Walnut 4686 or at 11 Pryor street, S. W. By this means, it is assured there will be no duplication of gifts or, what is worse, neglect of homes in which real need exists.

"We shall try to make sure that no-duplication of gifts or, what is worse, neglect of homes in which real need exists.

"We shall try to make sure that nobody is forgotten, that the Christmas dollar will go as far as humanly possible," Miss Ansley said Tuesday, announcing the plan. "There is more need this year than ever before that our expenditures for Christmas bounty be thoughtfully made, and that they go as far as possible. The need seems to us five times as great as ever before—the danger that many a worthy family will be forgotten is five times that of other years."

As an example of the service offered by the Christmas Clearing House, Miss Ansley explained that family groups and single persons of every description are on the lists of the Social Service Index. If a household or individual planning a gift for one less fortunate should prefer a child of a certain age, perhaps in reminder of a loved one who has been lost; or a small brother and sister, or a lone aged couple, or a large family group, the special need has only to be expressed. The Christmas Clearing House, Miss Ensley explained, will fill it.

"There are several requirements for the fullest and most effective Christmas giving which should be remembered." Miss Ansley said. "This year, of all years, we should give useful gifts. So many more persons have gone without the necessities of life a longer time than ever before, that it is fitting the remembrances be something truly to be cherished.

"We should give wisely. Different families have different needs. Our records, including thousands of Atlanta's needy, will be able to guide the giver for the best happiness.

"We should give considerately, helping preserve the family integrity and self-respect by not making our gifts ostentatious. We should give adequately, and co-operatively. Let Atlanta neglect none of its unfortunates."

Petition of five residents of the Oglethorne University section of the city, seeking to enjoin the city from enforcing a 25 per cent increase in their water rates, will be continued before Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court this morning. It is slated to be finished by noon.

The hearing opened Tuesday and consumed the entire day. All testimony was concluded shortly before 5 o'clock in the afternoon and only the arguments remain to be heard this morning. Roy Collier, G. Pope Huguley, E. D. Crane Jr., Forrest L. Fowler and H. E. Salter are the citizens seeking to prevent the city from forcing them to pay a rate increase they described the city of the collection. them to pay a rate increase they de-clare to be discriminatory. City attor-neys maintain that they live outside the city and pay no taxes and that unless this rate is charged them to pay for a water main that cost ar proximately $13,000, taxpayers of the city will have to pay for it.

MORE TOYS NEEDED FOR NEEDY KIDDIES

The Atlanta Better Films committee and the woman's division of the Chamber of Commerce, which are sponsoring a campaign to collect, repair and distribute to poor children toys no longer of service to their more fortunate owners, reported Tuesday that Atlantans are responding liberally, but that additional toys are needed if the movement is to be a success. Atlantans are urged to telephone the Salvation Army, Walnut 1940, and Ensign Fred Foster will have the Salvation Army truck tall for such toys, which will be repaired at the Army headquarters by unemployed persons. Later the toys will be distributed to children of impoverished families.

For the first time since Seth Parker and his Jonesport neighbors began to gather every Sunday night for an old-fashioned hymn singing in the Parker home on the rock-bound coast of Maine, Georgia folks will be able to sit with them in one of their little "githerins," Seth and his neighbors will appear in person at the city auditorium Friday night and it is expected that all Atlanta will turn out to greet them and take part in the singing.

For more than two years millions of people have listened on Sunday nights to the harmonious singing, the sweet mellow tones of the old-time melodeon and the Yankee witticisms of Seth himself, but have had to conjure in their own minds the setting as it really was. Friday night the audience will be taken into the parlor of the Parker home and will have a personal touch with the original characters. The performance will start compromise plan for settling the dispute between China and Japan in Manchuria.

Dawes Confers With League Heads on Proposal for Sino-Jap Peace.

The plan of settlement, finally drafted and tentatively approved today by all parties, provides for sending an international commission of inquiry into the far east to dig into all causes, both remote and recent, of trouble between China and Japan.

Other "details" upon which the two parties were unable to agree—such as a definite provision for evacuation by Japan within a stipulated time limit and the organization of a new neutral zone—have been eliminated altogether or placed in the interpretive declaration of Chairman Aristide Briand. This declaration will have no executive validity.

After the council members had approved the final arrangements late this afternoon, General Dawes crossed the Seine and discussed the entire situation with M. Briand and Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the League.

While the ambassador declined to While the ambassador declined to comment afterward, it was understood he acquainted himself with all details of the scheme which the United States already had approved in principle.

League authorities declared the proposed settlement, if it received formal ratification by all 14 council members tomorrow, would provide a basis for enduring peace in the far cast.

They admitted everything depended, however, upon future military developments in Manchuria.

The resolution calls for troop evacuation by Japan as soon as possible and binds both parties not to aggravate the situation.

Apprehension was provoked this afternoon by news reports that action by the Japanese troops was contemplated in the Chinchow area.

The organization of a neutral zone has been virtually abandoned and the council will take the position that demilitarized area already exists and both parties are engaged not to violate it.

The first hand in the whole contest to be passed out was the 57th deal, which came in the tenth rubber.

I have nothing but praise for the play in tonight's session of both Mrs. Culbertson, my partner, and our skillful opponents. It was a very close contest with the decision hinging on many a successful finesse, many a lucky break, as well as many a fine bid and expert play.

No threatening gestures nor harsh words have cropped out as yet either between partners or between opponents. Cheer up, it will come yet.

In the fixth rubber, the third of tonight's session, Mrs. Culbertson gave a beautiful demonstration of accurate bidding. I invited her to slam. In fact, I earnestly urged her to come with me into the slam zone. But she politely and firmly refused the invitation, having by her first response to my open declaration, shown me all of the values in her hand.

The result of her refusal to be enticed beyond the limits of good judgment was that we made exactly the five-odd in spades which I had forced her to bid instead of going down one on an impossible small slam contract. We were vulnerable at the time and, therefore, won the rubber through my

The first and only low-priced car with

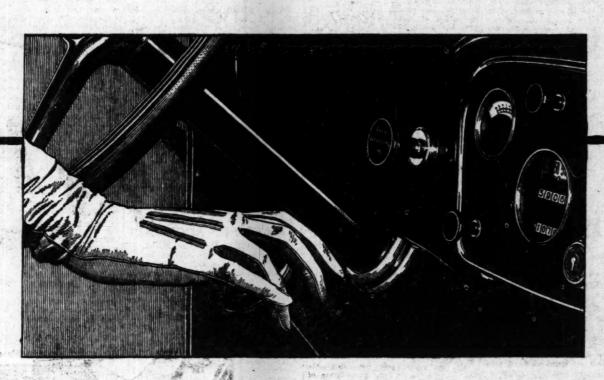

Syncro-Mesh Shift and Free Wheeling

This is the first time that these two outstanding inventions have been brought together in a low-priced automobile. Syncro-Mesh is recognized as the most advanced type of transmission ever developed by engineering science. Free Wheeling is that new, up-to-date sensation which adds so much to the zest of driving. The two make a matchless combination! They bring about an entirely new kind of driving ease and car control, far beyond anything you have ever enjoyed before. They give you quick, quiet shifting and complete mastery of the car, under all conditions of road and traffic. They enable you to do things in driving that are impossible to do in a car without both these features.

Suppose you prefer to drive in "standard" gear, without Free Wheeling. Syncro-Mesh enables you to shift from low to second, second to high, and high back to second, with uncanny speed, silence and precision. There's no sticking of gears with Syncro-Mesh. No annoying clashing, grinding or grating. A simple flick of the gear-shift lever, and the gear slips into place like magic. This ability is particularly desirable when descending steep hills or traveling slippery streets. You can make an instant gear-change from high back into second, without slowing down the car. Thus, you take quick advantage of the braking power and controlling force of the engine's compression.

Then, suppose you want to enjoy Free Wheeling. Simply

The new Chevrolet Six combines the advantages of two inventions . . . Syncro-Mesh and Free Wheeling . . . to assure quick, quiet, easy gearshifting and positive control of the car under every driving condition press a convenient button on the dash. Thereafter, and until you pull the button out again, you are "in" Free Wheeling. Every time you remove your foot from the accelerator, your engine is released. You coast along with a delightful gliding sensation. You are free from the "pull" and "drag" of engine compression. And every time you want to shift, you do so with never-to-be-forgotten ease.

The Free Wheeling mechanism of the new Chevrolet Six is a highly simplified type. Instead of being a complicated mechanism with many moving parts, it is a simple, sturdy unit, with only three moving parts. Just as no other low-priced automobile has Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting, no other combines it with simplified FreeWheeling!

But these two big features are only the start of a long list of improvements in the new Chevrolet Six. Come in and get the facts about them all. Chevrolet offers a complete new line of Fisher bodies, styled, finished and appointed like custom cars. Chevrolet offers an exclusive new front fender mounting—which stabilizes the entire front end assembly and gives a fine feeling of steadiness while traveling over rough roads. Chevrolet's 60-horsepower six-cylinder engine is 20 per cent more powerful than before, much livelier, even smoother and quieter at every speed—and capable of 65 to 70 miles per hour.

Combined with this brilliant new performance is matchless economy of operation and upkeep.

Finally, to emphasize Chevrolet's position as the Great American Value for 1932, the prices on these cars have been set as low as $475, f. o. b. Flint, Michigan—one of the lowest price groups in the motor car market.

LAID TO WILLIAMS

State Presents Testimony at Trial of Ex-Minister for Slaying Son.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. S.—(P)—
Testimony that J. M. Williams, on trial for the murder of his son, Raiford Grady Williams, repeatedly discussed the boy's insurance after his body was found in a millyard, was given by state's witnesses in the trial here today.

The state contends that Williams, former Methodist minister of Rochelle, Ga., killed the boy to collect his insurance, and attorneys said today's testimony was designed to strengthen that charge.

M. M. Stephens, Rochelle banker,
H. A. Stapham, American Legion official of Rochelle, and E. A. Peacock, Rochelle lawyer, all testified that insurance had been mentioned by Williams when they talked with him after liams when they talked with him after the killing.

Stephens said he offered to help fill out applications for the boy's insurance policies but that the father said he had already sent them in.

Stapham related a conversation with Williams in which he was asked if the boy could change beneficiary on a government policy without the father being notified, and Peacock said Williams mentioned insurance money when he attempted to collect money owed a Macon cotton broker.

It was also testified that the former minister expressed concern when Thomas S. Robinson, assistant cashier of the Albany City National bank, testified that the defendant deposited $2,500 on September 5 and that durant the september 5 and the s ing the next five days the minister withdrew $1,300 of this amount. O. F. Fulmer, Savanuah insurance man, said Williams had been paid

DAVID SPENCE HILL TO SPEAK AT ATHENS

First Barrow Foundation Lecture Is Scheduled for December 15.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 8.—David Spence Hill, Ph. D., Ll., D., will deliver the first Barrow Foundation lecture for the present session at the University of Georgia, December 15. He will speak in the chapel.

Mr. Hill has had wide connections with educational institutions. He has held professorial positions at Tulane, Illinois and Wisconsin Universities, and for eight years he was president of the State University of Mexico.

For some time past Mr. Hill has been in charge as director of the research carried on by the national advisory committee on education. This committee has recently issued a voluminous report on the relations of federal government to education. This report has come in for a good deal of criticism because it recommends the creation of a national department of education, the secretary to be of cabinet rank.

Mr. Hill has for many years been

WASHINGTON. Dec. 8.—On motion of Senator W. J. Harris, of Georgia, the senate today adopted a resolution expressing profound regret over the death during the summer of the late Representative Charles G. Edwards, of Savannah. A similar measure was adopted by the lower house earlier in the day.

Two other bills were also introduced today by the senior Georgia senator. One would authorize the federal farm loan board to grant an extension of one year in time for collecting interest on loans made to farmers. The other bill would permit periodicals and publications using paper made from cotton to take advantage of second-class mail privileges. Under the present law such periodicals are, required to pay a higher rate. The measure has been recommended by the postoffice department.

Governor Confers With Chairman Farley at Warm Springs Cottage. WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Dec. 8 .-(P)-Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and James Farley, chairman of the New York state dem ocratic committee, today took advantage of bleak, rainy weather to distage of bleak, rainy weather to discuss affairs of state.

Seated before a roaring log fire in the governor's cottage, the two talked of state party matters, they said, but declined to mention the specific subjects under discussion.

Mr. Farley arrived last night from Washington, where he conferred with congressional leaders over the weekend. Upon leaving the train he said Governor Roosevelt would be nominated for president on the first ballot at the democratic national convention. Recent correspondence and a trip over the west last summer showed much sentiment for the New York governor, he said.

Richard Crane, of Westover, Va., former classmate of Governor Roosevelt and former minister to Czecho-Slovakia, was a luncheon guest at the governor's cottage today.

Mr. Farley said he would remain until Thursday, when the governor and his party expects to leave for New York.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Why is it that husbands and wives don't recognize the bad taste of cutting and slashing at each other in public? Take a man and woman that know and practice good manners in their social life and let the slightest thing go wrong between them and they fling away all inhibitions and go for each other like a couple of Comanche Indians. It's one of the mysteries of life. Last night I heard a young woman speak to her husband like he was a dog. He is a successful young professional man, respected, and respectable. Yet when he did something that she thought "out of the way," she called him to task just as you would call a puppy to task when he had offended the code of house behavior. The husband showed admirable self-control and by refusing to be embroiled in a discussion he saved the onlookers further embarrassment, though, goodness knows, they had enough already.

Like everything else that is improper, such a breach of etiquette, or rather of good manners, reflects on the person who commits it and not on the person at whom it is directed. However, if a man accepts such rebukes from his wife in meckness it is a question about his having any spirit and if he fires back at her it is a question as to whether or not he knows how to treat a lady. In either event the wife, because I believe this habit is more frequently a feminine foible. The wife constantly stands guard at the door of her husband's speech and behavior and it is she who reproves him when anything comes out that she disapproves.

The wife's excuse is, "I want him to make a good impression. I hate to have people think him ill-mannered, when in reality he has lovely manners." The answer is that any deflection might have gone unnoticed if attention hadn't been called to it and the very reference to it in public necessitates further bad manners on the man's part, or at best, confusion and embarrassment that often expresses itself in sullen silence. So she defeats her own purpose and in doing if renders everybody present uncomfortable.

Anybody who knows anything about life knows that two people who live together, no matter how much they love each other, get on each other's nerves, annoy each other, and sometimes mortify each other. There is no quarrel with that state of affairs, but there is a quarrel when one of them allows such an irritation to make one "squeal" on the other. It is the height of bad manners. After all, good manners may be reduced to a very simple formula. It doesn't consist in bowing and scraping nor in getting up and sitting down at the proper moment, nor in putting a letter in an envelope a certa way, nor in addressing a person with a prescribed prefix. Good manners that you may learn out of a book or from the socially-elect that doesn't take this fact into account is a spurious sort of manners that will not survive long.

A woman once told me that she moved her seat in the dining room of a summer resort hotel because the woman next to her habitually humiliated her husband by calling attention to his bad table manners. And said she: "Of the two I thought the man who forked his butter and held his knife as though it were a dagger, and tucked his napkin in his-collar and washed his face in his finger bowl, had better manners than his dainty wife who observed the table amenities but who forgot loving kindness."

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

A few days ago a group of friends were playing bridge in my home. During the game I had a dispute with one of two sisters, a dispute in which I, not she, was wrong. I begged her pardon, apologized, but she went home while I prepared the refreshments and since then she has steadily refused to speak to me. A second time I went to her and begged her pardon, told her I wanted her friendship. The more we talked the madder she got and she said some very bitter and unkind things to me. Can you suggest any further steps that I might take, or do you think I should let the matter drop?

CONSCIENTIOUS. DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: CONSCIENTIOUS.

tions are concerned. There is nothing more you can do at the present time. Later perhaps you will have the opportunity of granting her pardon. These very quick-tempered people, like yourself, that fly off the handle with guests in their home, are quickly over their temper and ready to forget; while the slow to wrath find it hard to forgive such explosions, having no personal acquaintance with them. In the case of one such that I know about, when her wrath is aroused it mounts and mounts and doesn't really reach its peak for several days after the unpleasantness. The best policy to pursue with such people is the one you have pursued—acknowledge your fault, ask for giveness for it, and then withdraw.

There are a few people in the world who don't know the first elements of forgiveness, people who hold grudges as long as life. Fortunately they are few and far between. In all probability your friend will get over her anger and meet you on common ground. In the interim don't discuss the affair with anyone. More trouble is bred by talk than by silence. The less you say the less you have to take back, or to regret, once cordial relations are re-established.

The obvious advantage held by the trumped and led his last The obvious advantage held by the Declarer in the play of the cards is often stated by the rough approximation that the play of the hand is worth a trick. This may or may not be true. It is, of course, apparent that the Declarer, seeing all the cards, the play of which he can control, should be better able to combine them to advantage than can his two opponents, who are necessarily ignorant as to the location of important cards. It is because of this fact that the Declarer can sometimes make a contract is because of this fact that the Declarer can sometimes make a contract by the use of guile, which would fail if he simply attempted to bludgeon his way through by main force. UNC' BILLY'S DISAPPOINT-

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS. I think more frequently than not That disappointment is my lot. —Unc' Billy Possum.

It is the same way with most of us It is the same way with most of us. Disappointments are a part of life and more often than perhaps we think they are the best thing for us. The little people of the Green Meadows, the Green Forest, the Smiling Pool, the Laughing Brook, the Old Orchard and the Old Pasture are quite used to disappointments. They take them as a matter of course. a matter of course. Often they learn from them. You know you can learn from disappointments. Sometimes I am led to believe that more is to be earned from disappointments than from success.

Unc' Billy Possum had set his heart on getting a fresh egg from Farmer Brown's henhouse. He was egg hun-on getting a tresh egg from Father, Brown's henhouse. He was egg hungry. He knew that the wise thing would be to turn his back on that henhouse and get away from temptation as fast as his legs could take him. He knew all about that henhouse and the risk of visiting it. He had been there before and had got in trouble as a result. But he just must have one egg, at least one, if it could be obtained.

So Unc' Billy left Runty, his small son, at the edge of the Green Forest with strict orders to wait there for his return and made his way along the old stone wall on the edge of the Old Orchard. He felt safe enough there, for there were bushes all along the old wall and plenty of openings between the stones into which to creep should an enemy appear. When he reached the end of the old stone wall he had a short distance to go across an open an enemy appear. When he reached the end of the old stone wall he had a short distance to go across an open space to reach the henhouse. But it was dark and Unc' Billy felt quite safe. However, before he left the old wall he sat for a while listening to make sure that Bowser the Hound or Flip the Terrier was not prowling about. Sure that the way was clear, he shuffled over to the henhouse.

He went around three sides of the house looking for a hole, but there was none. There wasn't even a hole under the house. Unc' Billy sighed. "Ah reckon," he muttered, "that Ah done got to climb that fence. Ah cert'nly hope there is a way into that house from inside that fence."

So Unc' Billy climbed up to the top of the wire fence around the henyard and then climbed down on the inside. That wire was easy climbing for Unc' Billy, It didn't bother, him at all. When he reached the ground he hurried to the henhouse. He made straight for the little sliding door where the hens were in the habit of going in and out. He knew all about it. He had entered that way before.

hens were in the habit of going in and out. He knew all about it. He had entered that way before.

But it was only part way open, not enough to allow him to enter. He tried to slide it fully open, but it would not budge. There was something back of it that kept it from opening farther. Unc. Billy could get his nose in, but not much more. He could hear the hens moving on the roosts as now in, but not much more. He could hear the hens moving on the roosts as now and then one would awaken enough to change position. It seemed to him that he could actually smell eggs, which, of course, he couldn't. He worked and worked at that door, but it wouldn't budge.

Then he hunted for a hole under the henhouse, thinking that if he could get underneath he might find a hole in the floor through which he could climb. But there was no hole, and the ground was too hard to dig one. Back to the little door he went and worked and worked he tried his teeth trumped and led his last diamond, which South won with the Ace and led a club, but it was now too late to save the game as the established Queen of diamonds afforded a discard for East's losing club.

Through permitting an opponent to draw incorrect inferences as to the location of an important card, the Declarer had made an unmakeable contract.

INSTALLMENT XLIV.

Nothing else changed. Russell was the same adoring, thoughtful soul that Irma had always known him to be. Ofttimes she wondered what was going to happen. For something, she told herself, must happen. Nothing ever stayed the same forever—especially when it is so very pleasant.

On the night that marked her a year old resident of Paris she and Russell dined alone at Les Champs Elysees. It was Irma's pet among Yarisian restaurants, because it combined the best features of French and American management. Good cooking, reasonably prompt service, and a selection of such beloved American foods as corn on the cob and candied sweet potatoes.

"Russell," she said, "you know that penthouse in New York has been a damn foolish business. Very nearly ten thousand dollars has been thrown away on rent for it this year. Text of Hoover's Message to 72d Congress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(P)—The text of President Hoover's message to congress follows:
To the senate and house of repre-

the senate and house of representatives:

It is my duty under the constitution to transmit to the congress information on the state of the Union and to recommend for its consideration necessary and expedient measures.

The chief influence affecting the state of the Union during the past year has been the continued worldwide economic disturbance. Our national concern has been to meet the emergencies it has created for us and to lay the foundations for recovery. If we lift our vision beyond these immediate emergencies we find fundamental national gains even amid depression. In meeting the problems of this difficult period, we have witnessed a remarkable development of the sense of co-operation in the community. For the first time in the history of our major economic depressions there has been a notable pressions there has been a notable munity. For the first time in the history of our major economic depressions there has been a notable absence of public disorders and industrial conflict. Above all, there is an enlargement of social and spiritual responsibility among the people. The strains and stresses upon business have resulted in closer application, in saner policies, and in better methods. Public improvements have been carried out on a largeg scale than even in normal times. The country is richer in physical property, in newly discovered resources, and in productive capacity than ever before. There has been constant gain in knowledge and education; there has been distinct gain in public health. Business depressions have been recurrent in the life of our country and are but transitory. The nation has emerged from each of them with increased strength and virility because of the enlightenment they have brought, the readjustments and the larger understanding of the realities and obligations of life and work which come from them.

National Defense.

Both our army and navy have been maintained in a high state of efficiency. The ability and devotion of both officers and men sustain the highest traditions of the service. Reductions and postponements in expenditure of these departments to meet the present emergency are being made without reducing existing personnel or impairing the moing personnel or impairing the morale of either establishment. The agreement between the leading naval powers for limitation of naval nts and establishment of their relative strength and thus elimina-tion of competitive building also im-plies for ourselves the gradual ex-pansion of the deficient categories in our navy to the parties provided in those treaties. However, none of the other nations, parties to these agreements, is today maintaining the full rate of construction which the treaty size of fleets would imply.

Although these agreements secured the maximum reduction of fleets which it was at that time possible to attain, I am hopeful that the naval powers, party to these agreements, will realize that establishment of relative strength in itself offers opportunity for further reduction without injury to any of them. This would be the more possible if pendwould be the more possible if pending negotiations are successful between France and Italy. If the world is to regain its standards of life, it must further decrease both naval and other arms. The subject will come before the general disar-mament conference which meets in Foreign Affairs.

We are at peace with the world. We have co-operated with other nations to preserve peace. The rights of our citizens abroad have been proand deepened in every part of the world during the past year. In many countries political instability, excessive armaments, debts, govern-mental expenditures, and taxes have esulted in revolutions, in unbalanced budgets and monetary collapse and financial panies, in dumping of goods upon world markets, and in diminish-Within two years there have been countries embracing more than half the population of the world. Ten countries have been unable to meet their external obligations. In 14 countries, embracing a quarter of the world's population, former mone-tary standards have been temporarily abandoned. In a number of countries there have been acute financial panies or compulsory restraints upon banking. These disturbances have many roots in the dislocations from the World War. Every one of them has reacted upon us. They have sharply affected the markets and prices of our agricultural and industrial products. They have increased unemployment and greatly embarassed our financial and credit system.

As our difficulties during the past year have plainly originated in large degree from these sources, any ef-fort to bring about our own recuperation has dictated the necessity of cotion has dictated the necessity of co-operation by us with other nations in reasonable effort to restore world confidence and economic stability. Co-operation of our federal reserve system and our banks with the censystem and our banks with the cen-tral banks in foreign countries has contributed to localize and ameliorate a number of serious financial crises or moderate the pressure upon us and thus avert disasters which would have affected us.

The economic crisis in Germany and central Europe last June rose to the dimensions of a general panic from which it was apparent that without assistance these nations must collapse. Apprehensions of such collapse had demoralized our agricultural and security markets and so threatened other nations as to impose further dangers upon us. But of highest importance was the necessity of co-operation on our part cessity of co-operation on our part to relieve the people of Germany from imminent disasters and to main-tain their important relations to progress and stability in the world. Upon the initiative of this government a year's postponement of rep-arations and other inter-governmental debts was brought about. Upon our further initiative an agreement was made by Germany's private creditors providing for an extension of such credits until the German people can develop more permanent and definite forms of relief.

and Nicaragua. The difficulties between China and Japan have given us great concern, not alone for the maintenance of the spirit of the Kellogs-Briand pact, but for the maintenance of the treaties to which we are a party assuring the territorial integrity of China. It is our purpose to assist in finding solutions sustaining the full spirit of those treaties. I shall deal at greater length with our foreign relations in a later mes-

Many undertakings have been organized and forwarded during the past year to meet the new and changing emergencies which have constantly confronted us.

Broadly the community has co-operated to meet the needs of honest distress, and to take such emergency measures as would sustain confi-

Review of Activities.

recommendations to the congress it is desirable very balefly to review such activities during the past year. The emergencies of unemployment have been met by action in many directions. The appropriations for the continued speeding up of the great federal construction program have provided direct and indirect and the employment upon a large aid to employment upon a large scale. By organized unity of ac-tion, the states and municipalities tion, the states and managements have also maintained large programs of public improvement. Many in-dustries have been prevailed upon to anticipate and intensify construc-tion. Industrial concerns and other employers have been organized to spread available work amongst all their employes, instead of discharging a portion of them. A large majority have maintained wages at as levels as the safe conduct of their business would permit. This course has saved us from industrial conflict and disorder which have characterized all previous depres-sions. Immigration has been cur-tailed by administrative action. Upon the basis of normal immigration the decrease amounts to about 300,000 individuals who otherwise would have been added to our unemploy-ment. The expansion of federal employment agencies under appropria-tions by the congress has proved most effective. Through the president's organization for unemployment relief, public and private agencies were successfully mobilized last winter to provide employment and other measures against distress. Similar organization gives assurance against suffering during the coming winter. Committees of leading citizens are now active at practically every point of unemployment. In the large majority they have been assured the funds necessary which, together with local government aids, will meet the situation. A few exceptional locali-ties will be further organized. The evidence of the public health service shows an actual decrease of sick-ness and infant and general mortality below normal years. No greater proof could be adduced that our people have been protected from hunger and cold and that the sense of social responsibility in the sense of social cial responsibility in the nation has responded to the need of the unfor-Red Cross Lauded.

To meet the emergencies in agriculture the loans authorized by conture the loans authorized by congress for rehabilitation in the drouth areas have enabled farmers to produce abundant crops in those districts. The Red Cross undertook and magnificently administered relief for over 2,500,000 drouth sufferers last winter. It has undertaken this year to administer relief to 100,000 sufferers in the new drouth area of certain northwest states. The action of the federal farm board in granting credits to farm board in granting credits to farm co-operatives saved many of them from bankruptcy and increased heir purpose and strength. By enabling farm co-operatives to cushic the fall in prices of farm products in 1930 and 1931 the board secured higher prices to the farmer than higher prices to the farmer than would have been obtained otherwise although the benefits of this actio were partially defeated by continued world overproduction. Incident to this action the failure of a large number of farmers and of country banks was averted which could quite possibly have spread into a major disaster. The banks in the south have co-operated with the farm board in creation of a pool for the better marketing of accumulated cotton. Growers have been materially assisted by this action. Constant ef-fort has been made to reduce over-production in relief of agriculture and to promote the foreign buying of agricultural products by sustain-ing economic stability abroad. To meet our domestic emergencies in credit and banking arising from the reaction to acute crises abroad the National Credit Association was set up by the banks with resources of $500,000,000 to support sound banks against the frightened withdrawals and hoarding. It is giving aid to reopen solvent banks which have been closed. Federal officials have brought about many beneficial unions of banks and have employed other means which have prevented many bank closings. As a result of these measures the hoarding withdrawals which had risen to over $250,000. 000 per week after the British crisi have substantially ceased.

Further Measures.

That major economic forces and weaknesses at home and abroad have now been exposed and can be appraised, and the time is ripe for forward action to expedite our recovery.

Although some of the causes of our depression are due to speculation, inflation of securities and real estate, unsound foreign investments, and mismanagement of financial institutions, yet our self-contained national economy, with its matchless strength and resources, would have enabled us to recover long since but for the continued dislocations, shocks and setbacks from abroad.

Whatever the causes may be, the vast Whatever the causes may be, the vast liquidation and readjustments which have taken place have left us with a large degree of credit paralysis, which, together with the situation in our railways and the conditions abroad, are now the outstanding ob-stacles to recuperation. If we can put our financial resources to work fident we can make a large measure of recovery independent of the rest of the world. A strong America is the highest contribution to world stability.

Banking Phase.

One phase of the credit situation is indicated in the banks. During the past year banks representing 3 percent of our total deposits have been closed. A large part of these failures has been caused by withdrawals for hoarding, as distinguished from the failures early in the depression where weakness due to mismanagement was the larger cause of failure. Despite their closing, many of them will pay in full. Although such withdrawals have practically ceased, yet will pay in full. Although such with-drawals have practically ceased, yet $1,100,000,000 of currency was pre-viously withdrawn which has still to return to circulation. This repre-sents a large reduction of the ability of our banks to extend credit which would otherwise fertilize industry and agriculture. Furthermore, many of our bankers, in order to prepare themselves to meet possible withthemselves to meet possible with-drawals, have felt compelled to call in loans, to refuse new credits, and to realize upon securities, which in turn has demoralized the markets. The paralysis has been further augmented by the steady increase in recent years of the proportion of bank assets invested in long-term securities, such as mortgages and bonds. These securities tend to lose their liquidity in depression or tem-porarily to fall in value so that the ability of the banks to meet the shock of sudden withdrawal is greatly lessened and the restriction all kinds of credit is thereby in-creased. The continuing credit pa-ralysis has operated to accentuate the deflation and liquidation of commodities, real estate and securities below any reasonable basis of values.

Stifle Business.

All of this tends to stifle business. especially the smaller units, and finally expresses itself in further de-pression of prices and values, in re-striction on new enterprise, and in increased unemployment.

The situation largely arises from an unjustified lack of confidence. We have enormous volumes of idle money in the banks and in hoarding. money in the banks and in hoarding. We do not require more money or working capital—we need to put what we have to work.

The fundamental difficulties which have brought about financial strains in foreign countries do not exist in the United States. No external drain on our resources can threaten our position, because the balance of international payments is in our favor; we owe less to foreign countries than they owe to us; our industries are efficiently organized; our currency and bank deposits are protected by the greatest gold re-serve in history.

serve in history.
Our first step toward recovery is to re-establish confidence and thus restore the flow of credit which is the very basis of our economic life. We must put some steel beams in the foundations of our credit structure. It is our duty to apply the full strength of our government nor only to the immediate phases, but to provide security against shocks and the repetition of the weaknesses which have been proven. The recommendations which I here lay before the congress are designed to meet these needs by strengthening financial, industrial and agricultural life through the medium of Federal Government Finance The first requirement of confidence and of economic recovery is finan-cial stability of the United States government. I shall deal with fiscal questions at greater length in the budget message. But I must at this time call attention to the mag-nitude of the deficits which have developed and the resulting necessity for determined and courageous poli-cies. These deficits arise in the main from the heavy decrease in tax re-ceipts due to the depression and to the increase in expenditure on con-struction in aid to unemployment, aids to agriculture and upon services to veterans.

ices to veterans.
During the fiscal year ending June 30 last we incurred a deficit of about $903,000,000, which included the statutory reduction of the debt and represented an increase of the national debt by $616,000,000. Of this, however, $153,000,000 is offset by increased cash balances.
Le comparison with the fiscal year In comparison with the fiscal year 1928 there is indicated a fall in federal receipts for the present fiscal year amounting to $1,683,000,000, of which $1,034,000,000 is in individual and corporate income taxes alone.

During this fiscal year there will

Federal Reserve be an increased expenditure, as compared to 1928, on veterans of $255.-000,000, and an increased expenditure on construction work which may reach $520,000,000. Despite large economies in other directions, we have an indicated deficit, including the statutory retirement of the debt. of $2,123,000,000 and an indicated net debt increase of about $1,711,- budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, after allowing for some increase of taxes under the present laws and after allowing for drastic reduction in expenditures still indicates a deficit of $1,417,000. 000. After offsetting the statutory debt retirements this would indicate an increase in the national debt for the fiscal year 1933 of about $921,several conclusions are inevitable. We must have insistent and determined reduction in government expenses We must face a temporary increase in taxes. Such increase should not cover the whole of these deficits or it will retard recovery. We must partially finance the deficit by borpartially finance the deficit by bor-rowing. It is my view that the amount of taxation should be fixed so as to balance the budget for 1933 except for the statutory debt retire-ment. Such government receipts would assure the balance of the fol-lowing year's budget, including debt retirement. It is my further view that the additional taxation should be imposed solely as an emergency he imposed solely as an emergency measure terminating definitely two years from July 1 next. Such a basis will give confidence in the determi-nation of the government to stabilize its finance and will assure tax payers of its temporary character. Even with increased taxation, the government will reach the utmost safe limit of its borrowing capacity by the expenditures for which we are already obligated and the recom-mendations here proposed. To go fur-ther than these limits in either expenditures, taxes, or borrowing will destroy confidence, denude commerce and industry of its resources, jeopard-ize, the financial system, and actually extend unemployment and de-moralize agriculture rather than re-lieve it.

Federal Land Banks. I recommend that the congress au-thorize the subscription by the treas-ury of further capital to the federal land banks to be retired as provided in the original act, or when funds are available, and that repayments of such capital be treated as a fund available for further subscriptions in the same manner. It is urgent that banks be supported so as to sta-

A method should be devised to make available quickly to depositors some portion of their deposits in closed banks as the assets of such banks may warrant. Such provision would go far to relieve distress in a multi-tude of families, would stabilize valnes in many communities, and would liberate working capital to the of concerns. I recommend that measures be enacted promptly to accomplish these results and I suggest that the congress should consider the development of such a plan them. federal reserve banks.

Home-Loan Discount Banks. I recommend the establishment of a system of home-loan discount banks as the necessary companion in our financial structure of the federal reserve banks and our federal land banks. Such action will relieve present distressing pressures agai home and farm property owners. I will relieve pressures upon and give added strength to building and loan associations, savings banks and deposit banks, engaged in extending such credits. Such action would fur-ther decentralize our credit struc-ture. It would revive residential con-struction and employment. It would enable such formate home effectually to promote home discussed this plan at enable such loaning institutions more effectually to promote home owner-ship. life through the medium of our existing institutions, and thus to avoid the entry of the government into competition with private business.

Federal Government Finance

The first requirement of confidence

The first requirement of confidence that an emergency reconstruction corporation of the nature of the for-mer War Finance Corporation should be established. It may not be necessary to use such an instrumentality sary to use such an instrumentality very extensively. The very existence of such a bulwark will strengthen confidence. The treasury should be authorized to subscribe a reasonable capital to it, and it should be given authority to issue its own debentures. It should be placed in liquidation at the end of two years. Its purpose is that by strengthening the weak spots to thus liberate the full strength of the nation's restrength of the nation's refull facilitate exports by American agen-cies; make advances to agricultural credit agencies where ne and aid the agricultu dustry; to make temporary advance upon proper securities to established industries, railways, and financial institutions which cannot otherwise se-cure credit, and where such advances will protect the credit structure and stimulate employment. Its functions would not overlap those of the National Credit Corporation.

Eligibility.

On October 6 I issued a statement that I should recommend to the congress an extension during emergencies of the eligibility provisions in the federal reserve act. This statement was approved by a representative gathering of the members of both houses of the congress, including members of the appropriate committees. It was approved by the officials of the treasury department, and I understand such an extension has been approved by a majority of has been approved by a majority of the governors of the federal reserve banks. Nothing should be done which would lower the safeguards of the system.

The establishment of the mortgage-discount banks herein referred to will also contribute to further reserve strength in the banks without inflations.

Banking Laws.

Our people have a right to a banking system in which their deposits shall be safeguarded and the flow of credit less subject to storms. The need of a sounder system is plainly shown by the extent of bank failures. I or the extent of bank landers. It recommend the prompt improvement of the banking laws. Changed financial conditions and commercial practices must be met. The congress should investigate the need for separation between different kinds of aration between different kinds banking; an enlargement of branch banking under proper restriction; and the methods by which enlarged membership in the federal reserve system may be brought about.

Postal Savings Banks.

The postal savings deposits have increased from about $200,000,000 to about $550,000,000 during the past year. This experience has raised important practical questions in relation to deposits and investments which should receive the attention of congress. congress.

Railways.

The railways present one of our immediate and pressing problems. They are and must remain the backbone of our transportation system. Their prosperity is interrelated with the prosperity of all industries. Their fundamental service in transportation, the volume of their employment, their buying power for supplies from other industries, the enormous investment in their securities, particularly ment in their securities, particularly their bonds, by insurance companies, savings banks, benevolent and other trusts, all reflect their partnership in the whole economic fabric. Through these institutions the rail-way bonds are in a large sense the bonds are in a large sense the stment of every family. The way bor well-maintained and successful operation and the stability of railway finances are of primary importance to economic recovery. They should have more effective opportunity to reduce operating costs by proper consolidation. As their rates must be regulated in public interest, so also approximate regulation should be applied to competing services by some authority. The methods of their regulation should be revised. The interstate commerce commission has made important and far-reaching recommendations upon the whole subject, which I commend to the early consideration of the congress.

Anti-Trust Laws. In my message of a year ago I com-mented on the necessity of congres-sional inquiry into the economic ac-tion of the anti-trust laws. There is sional inquiry into the economic action of the anti-trust laws. There is wide conviction that some change should be made especially in the procedure under these laws. I do not favor their repeal. Such action would open wide the door to price-fixing, monopoly, and destruction of healthy competition. Particular attention should be given to the industries founded upon natural resources, especially where destructive competition produces great wastes of these resources and brings great hardships upon operators, employes, and the public. In recent years there has been continued demoralization in the bituminous coal, oil, and lumber industries. I again commend the matter to the consideration of the congress.

Unemployment. As an aid to unemployment the federal government is engaged in the greatest program of public-building, harbor, flood-control, highway, waterway, aviation, merchant and naval ship construction in all history. Our expenditures on these works during this calendar year will reach about $750.000,000 compared with $260,000,000 in 1928. Through this in-

000,000 in 1928. Through this increased construction, through the maintenance of a full complement of federal employes, and through services to veterans it is estimated that the federal taxpayer is now directly contributing to the livelihood of 10,000,000 of our citizens.

We must avoid burdens upon the government which will create more un employment in private industry than can be gained by further expansion of employment by the federal government. We can now stimulate fectually and speedily through the the thawing out of credit, through the thawing out of credit, through the building up of stability abroad, through the home loan discount banks, through an emergency finance corporation, and the rehabilitation of the railways and other such directions. rect government dole. The break lown and increased unemployment in Europe is due in part to such prac tices. Our people are providing against distress from unemployment in true American fashion by a mag-nificent response to public appeal and by action of the local govern-

General Legislation.

There are many other subjects requiring legislative action at this session of the congress. I may list the fol-lowing among them: Veterans' Services.

The law enacted last March author izing loans of 50 per cent upon adjusted service certificates has, tojusted service certificates has, to-gether with loans made under pre-vious laws, resulted in payments of about $1,260,000,000. Appropriations have been exhausted. The administra-tors of veterans' affairs advises that a further appropriation of $200,000,-000 is required at once to meet the obligations made necessary by exist-ing legislation. There will be demands for further veterans' legislation: there are in-

There will be demands for lurther veterans' legislation; there are inequalities in our system of veterans' relief; it is our national duty to meet our obligations to those who have served the nation. But our preserved ent expenditure upon these services now exceeds $1,000,000,000 per an-num. I am opposed to any extension of these expenditures until the country has recovered from the present situation

Electrical-Power Regulation. I have recommended in previous mes sages the effective regulation of inter state electrical power as the essential function of the reorganized federal power commission. I renew the recommendation. It is urgently needed in public protection. Muscle Shoals.

At my suggestion, the governors and legislatures of Alabama and Tennes-see selected three members each for service on a committee to which I service on a committee to which I appointed a representative of the farm organizations and two representatives of the war department for the purpose of recommending a plan for disposal of these properties which would be in the interest of the people of those states and the agricultural industry throughout the country. of those states and the agricultural industry throughout the country. I shall transmit the recommendations to congress.

Reorganization of Departments.

I have referred in previous messages to the profound need of further re-organization and consolidation of federal administrative functions federal administrative functions to eliminate overlap and waste, and to enable co-ordination and definition of government policies now wholly impossible in scattered and conflict-ing agencies which deal with parts of the same major function. I shall lay before the congress further rec-ommendations upon this subject, par-ticularly in relation to the dear ticularly in relation to the depart-ment of the interior. There are two directions of such reorganization, however, which have an important bearing upon the emergency problems with which we are confronted.

Shipping Board.

At present the shipping board exercises large administrative functions independent of the executive. These administrative functions should be transferred to the department of commerce, in keeping with that single responsibility which has been the basis of our governmental structure since its foundation. There should be created in that department a position of assistant secretary for merchant marine, under whom this work and the several bureaus having to do with merchant marine may be

The shipping board should be made a The shipping board should be made a regulatory body acting also in advisory capacity on loans and policies, in keeping with its original conception. Its regulatory powers should be amended to include regulation of coastwise shipping so as to assure stability and better service. It is also worthy of consideration that the regulation of rates and services upon the inland waterways should be assigned to such a reorganized board. Reorganization of Public

I recommend that all building and construction activities of the government now carried on by many departments be consolidated into an independent establishment under the president to be known as the "public works administration" directed by a public works administrator. This

These improvements are now proceeding upon an unprecedented scale. Some indication of the volume of work in progress is conveyed by the fact that during the current year over 380,000,000 cubic yards of material have been moved—an amount equal to the entire removal in the construction of the Panama canal. The Mississippi waterway system, connecting Chicago, Kansas City, Pittsburgh and New Orleans, will be in full operation during 1933. growth of the nation. The federal government must not encroach upon nor permit local communities to abandon that precious possession of local initiative and responsibility. Again, just as the largest measure of responsibility in the government of the nation rests upon local self-government, so does the largest measure of social responsibility in our country rest upon the individual. If the individual surrenders his own initiative and responsibilities, he is surrendering his own freedom and his own liberty. It is the duty of the national government to insist that both the local governments and the individual shall assume and bear these responsibilities as a fundamental of preserving the very basis of our freedom.

in the economic world. The effect of these changes upon the future cannot be seen clearly as yet. Of this, however, we are sure: Our system, based upon the ideals of individual initiative and of equality of opportunity, is not an artificial thing. Rather it is the outgrowth of the experience of America, and expresses the faith and spirit of our people. It has carried us in a century and a half to leadership of the economic world. If our economic system does not match our highest expectations at all times, it does not require revolutionary action to bring it into accord with any necessity that experience may prove. It has successfully adjusted itself to changing conditions in the past. It will do so again. The mobility of our institutions, the richness of our resources, and the abilities of our people enable us to meet them unafraid. It is a distressful time for many of our people, but they have shown qualities as high in fortitude, courage, and resourcefulness as ever in our history. With that spirit, I have faith that out of it will come as sounder life, a truer standard of values, a greater recognition of the results of honest effort, and a healthier atmosphere in which to rear our children. Ours must be a country of such stability and security as cannot fail to carry forward and enlarge among, all the people that abundant life of material and spiritual opportunity which it has represented among all nations since its beginning.—HERBERT HOOVES.

It is inevitable that in these times much of the legislation proposed to the congress and many of the recommendations of the executive must be designed to meet emergencies. You'll have to hide in a closet somewhere if you are going to dodge the spirit of Christmas this year. It is all about us right now, thrilling the children, bringing a certain mistiness to the eyes of the oldsters, stirring every one of us to a joy and hope we have not known so much lately.

It is just as though a pendulum had been swung, from one extreme to the other. Frowns and long faces have begun to vanish from the streets. Blue talk has trailed off to a whisper. The spirit of Christmas is sweeping pessimism away.

And why not? Christmas only comes once a yearand we are entitled to a vacation from solemnity and

Lack of Veterans May Hamper Tech's Basketball Prospects DOWNES, KEY DOUBTFUL STARTERS ON COAST

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 8.—There was more distressing news when the Bulldogs got settled here in Pasadena in preparation for the Saturday game with Southern California.

The football writers all came around and ladled out information which puts a curl in the hair and a permaent wave in the spine,

Among other things 'tis said that Howard Jones has taken a dozen of Pop Warner's reverse plays and mixed them in with his ower plays. These reverse plays, from a two-wingback formaon, have been the plays that "go" for him.

It was one of them that beat California and two of them that beat Notre Dame. Teams don't know when to count on the spin and reverse and consequently are surprised. And if they set to meet it, why then there

Only one touchdown has been scored on the Trojans this fall by passing. This was in the fourth quarter of the Washington game when fourth string Trojans, who are rated very highly indeed, were in the game.

Dick Hyland, who was an All-American halfback on the team which Alabama met and tied, thinks that long passes may score against the Californians. But nothing else will, he says, and this will be the fourth game against a Notre Dame system, so the Trojans aren't

The day was just right for bad news. It was raining a cold, steady rain. This had the native sons burning down. They went around speaking about it being such unusual weather and being the third rain since last January and all that sort of jolly old tommy rot.

At any rate they suited the news to the day.

AND NEWS FROM THE PRACTICE.

The news from the practice, word of which is carried in a story on this page, was also distressing. Fact is it was probably the most horribly depressing day in history. It may brighten up, but it doesn't seem any too sure.

There was just one bit of hope. The Los Angeles newspapermen who saw the practice, thought that the Georgia reserve linemen were larger than the Trojans. But, they were careful to add, the starting team looked a bit light. So they wagged solemn noggins at this

And if the Trojans should come through and win from both Georgia and Tulane it would not be surprising to have them erect a statue on the square. Or do they have one in dear old L. A.?

Apparently not worrying one whit about the abrupt change in the elements, Roy McClelland Mundorff, professor of mathematics and expert on the technique of looping a spheroid through a circle, was found bounding about in an airy costume and dem-onstrating his theories to a squad of scantily clad youths that ranged from lanky Bill Perkins down to the some-what stocky Hugh Gooding.

The boys were zipping the ball around rather merrily and Coach Mundorff was displaying surprising agility at keeping up with proceedings. Now and then he would rush in to take the ball out of circulation for a moment to explain the fine points of the cut-off play or to correct someone's idea of shooting form.

It seems that since Mundorff came from Pennsylvania to take over bas-ketball at Tech, he has never had a well-balanced squad with which to work. This year finds his material running true to form.

NEED HEIGHT. For instance, Gooding and Slocum, the two leading forward candidates, a junior and sophomore, respectively, are of the short, speedy type. Both are good shots and scoot about the floor skillfully enough, but they could use a foot or so of extra height.

Bierman Brings Back Pride and Joy of Williams' Heart.

By Clark D. Shaughnessy, Coach Loyola of the South.

Written for the Associated Press.

It goes back with Bernie Bierman, who returned to Minnesota as a sort of prodigal son, even though the cheers and acclaim of his playing days still ring in his ears. Bernie goes back to take up where "Doc" Williams left off and to put Minnesota back on the crest of the wave it rode in the early decades of this twentieth century.

I remember vividly the old doctor on his deathbed in a Minneapolis hospital last winter. With Dr. L. J. Cook, business manager, and E. B. Pierce, alumni secretary at Minnesota, I went to see him and we talked for two hours on football. It was then that he told me:

"Minnesota should get Bernie Bier-man and put him in charge of foot-ball. Until they do, they will never win a championship

They have been co-champions of the Southern conferco-champions of the Southern conter-ence for two years, and this season have won an undisputed right to the southern, and maybe the national crown. Yet I do not think that Tu-lane University, New Orleans, or the south fully appreciated the work that he did until his departure was im-minent.

Bernie wrote me early in 1924 and stated that he would like to resume coaching. He had coached for several years at Montana, but gave it up to go into the bond business at home. Many Stars To Return To Dixie Grids in 1932

Passing of Great Players Is Offset by Next Year's Eligible List.

It is somewhat cheering to those of us who cherish a certain amount of sentiment about the passing of football favorites, to check up on the arrival and departure of stars in the conference. Although a lot of good men are going, including ends like Georgia's Catfish Smith and Tulane's Jerry Dalrymple, the flower of the flankmen, it is discovered by a perusal of squad lists that many of the clever lads will be back.

Tulane, the conference standout, and Alabama appear to be the most fortunate on the first check-up. The Crimson Tide will return that greatest of "Saturday afternoon players," John (Hurry) Cain and the swashbuckling tackle, Newt Godfree. Chappell and Walker, other young backs, will return to help out in the manipulation of Alabama's newly acquired Notre Dame offense.

acquired Notre Dame offense.

As for the Green Wave that Bernies Bierman is leaving while rolling at high tide, there are many of the old

Dalrymple and Haynes, the two great ends, are going over the hill to that "crool" battle of life, but the backbone of the line and the backfield will be spared Ted Cox and Lester Lautsenshlaeger, the two coaches who will have to hold the bag.

In fact, Bernie Bierman could not have left at a more favorable time, both for himself and his successors.

STARS BACK.

The ball carriers who will put on their uniforms again next fall include Don Zimmerman, the skee-daddling Dutchman: Francis Payne, that hard driver; Nollie Felts, one of the south's greater fullbacks; James Hodgins, another capable halfback, and Harold Lemmon, an 186-pound fullback arold Lemmon, an 180-pound ful ack.

The line sees such stalwarts returning as John Scafide, the All-Southern guard from Bay St. Louis—home town of Notre Dame's Marchy Schwartz; Winnie Lodrigues, the brilliant center; Thomas Cunningham, tackle; Doyless Hill, 200-pound center; Sam ZeMurray, a 195-pound tackle; William Featherngill, another 200-pound tackle; Elson Delaune, and; John Read, center, who weighs 195; William Schroeder, tackle, 180; Louis Boesberg, and 180; Charlie Calhoun, guard, and Richard Bankston, tackle, 190.

Lowell Dawson, the regular quantiback, will be graduated, but to place him there is Pat Richardson ith two years of experience. Floyd oberts is a halfback who will make a excellent reserve.

NO SUFFERING.

There will be many, many teams i he south worse off than Tulane. So we will save our sympathy for Georia or some other member who will horn of a good portion of its power.

BULLDOGS HOLD DRILL IN RAIN UPON ARRIVAL

'Catfish' Held Out; Team Gets Big Welcome at Pasadena.

By Ralph McGill. PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 8.—Georgia was forced to go out in a heavy rain for practice on arrival here this afternoon and after an hour of slogging through the mud. Coach Harry Mehre reported that Austie Downes, quarterback, was dangerously near being out of the game with Southern California Saturday and that Homer Key was also in a precarious condition.

Key was also in a precarious condition.

Mehre held "Catfish" Smith out of the practice, fearing to let him out because of the cold he had when he left Athens and from which he recovered on the way out.

Downes, whose ankle seemed all right, and Key, whose knee was hurt, were permitted to go along. The field proved to be a morass, something like the swamps out in south Georgia. Honest, California was a pain in the next today. The palms and the peach trees looked phoney in a cold, hard rain.

TWO STARS LIMP.

At any rate, when the boys had slipped and slid through an hour of work. Downes came off limping and so did Key.

Mehre, who is not given to bear stories, said that he doubted very much if Downes would be able to play Saturday and that he was worried about Key.

"I had houed," said Coach Mehre, "to have a good day with a firm turf and a lot of sun so that we could get up a sweat and loosen up. It was almost fatal running into a cold, winter rain that made the boys go so badly.

"Downes could not run at all. I don't see how he can play and that is honest. The trainer will go to work on him and if we get some sun and a break he may be able. Sun should bring Key around. He has a better chance to play than Downes."

A BOMBSHELL.

Barrow Dismissed From Oglethorpe

Dave Barrow, Oglethorpe saphomore tackle, Tuesday morning was dismissed from school for "disorderly conduct on the campus," according to a formal announcement by Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president, and Frank Anderson Sr., athletic director.

Barrow will not return to school, the officials told The Constitution. The action is a blow to the 1932 football squad, coached by Harry Robertson. Barrow was one of the mainstays of the eleven during the past season and he gave promise of developing into a great tackle.

EX-HOMER KING PUT ON 'BLOCK'

Indians Refuse To Part With Averill for Faded Star.

By Paul Mickelson,

Associated Press Sports Writer. CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(P)—Two of the best known hitters in baseball, Eddie Morgan, of the Cleveland Indians, and Hack Wilson, of the Cubs, blocked the major league trade deals today.

It appeared that the two players were pivotal points in virtually every outstanding deal, and that none of the clubs in the two major leagues, here for their annual winter meeting and market days, wanted them. The Cubs were trying to use Wilson, their fallen home run king, in deals with Boston, Brooklyn, Cincianati and St. Louis without success. The Indians offered Morgan, a great batter but a mediocre fielding first baseman, without a definite nibble.

WANT AVERULA.

WANT AVERILL. Every time the Indians mentioned Morgan, a club owner or manager with whom they dealt would ask for Earl Averill, star Indian outfielder, but each time General Manager Bill Evans would toss up his hands and answer: "Not a chance for Averill."

Ralph Kress, star St. Louis Brown infielder, was definitely on the trading block. Washington, Chicago and New York have been after him ever since it was revealed the Browns had failed to make a deal with the Indians.

failed to make a deal with the Indians. The Cubs offered Wilson and a large bundle of William Wrigley Jr's gold to the St. Louis Cardinals for Outfielders George Watkins and Ernie Orsatti, but the trade fell flat so far as was known.

New York's Yankees were confronted with the sudden necessity of sending another player to St. Paul, of the American association, today in the transaction that gave them Jack Saltzgaver, star St. Paul second baseman. The Yankees sent Pitcher Roy Sherid to the Saints as part of the deal but Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis has ruled Sherid ineligible for violations of rules and the Yankees have to send another player in his place.

Georgia's Fiddlin' Fullback Plays a Tune

Lloyd Gilmore, destined to be Georgia's regular fuilback next year, replacing Jack Roberts, has a genuine weakness for the violin, it has become known. Gilmore, who, of course, must be dubbed the "Fiddlin' Fullback," likes to get his fingers good and limber after the football season so that he can fondle the strings of his fiddle and play the tunes he loves best. But Gilmore never fiddles about with the football. His artistic temperament doesn't extend to the gridiron. Photo by Turner Hiers.

The practice this afternoon was held on Tournament Park field, the home field of California Tech. It was here that California worked out for the Tech game in 1928. On arrival here the Georgians found themselves rated where they justly belong—as one of the best teams in the nation.

"Whether Georgia wins or loses it will be one of the nation's greatest teams," said the Los Angeles Examiner football writer.

Other papers paid similar tribute. The Bulldogs are expected to lose to what the boys call the greatest team, but they are recognized as being good, too. Which is very unusual of the boys—recognizing anyone else at all. Tickets are going at a great rate. Indications are that at least 80,000

Tickets are going at a great rate, indications are that at least 80,000 people will witness the game. Southern teams are popular here, or rather unpopular. The coast wants to see one well licked. There will be many people leaping into the arroyos around here if the Bulldogs upset the dope and the Trojans at one and the same time.

The team went from the station to the Huntington hotel at Pasadena, a magnificent resort hotel. It was a bit unusual to take the first work out in the rain, but the Bulldogs did. The embarrassed Californians pulled the same old line: "It's very unusual wather for us; never saw anything like it before.

HITCHE NAMED Lloyd Gilmore Never Fiddles at Football

Up-and-Coming Georgia Fullback Gives Promise of Developing Into Real Star.

By Al Smith.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 8.—Although he is very good at coaxing music from a violin or fiddle, or whatever you want to call it, Lloyd Gilmore, 175-pound-up-and-coming Georgia fullback, does not fiddle around while playing fullback. Which may be the reason he has a good hold on the first string position right now.

Gilmore, who is what some of the boys back home call a down-east Yankee, stepped out in the Auburn and Tech games to prove his mettle as an all-around good fullback, and Harry Mehre has been looking with a meditative eye at him since then while figuring out his plan of battle against Southern California. Against Auburn Gilmore played good football. Against Tech's Yellow Jackets he stepped out with long runs that startled the crowd and gave Friend Harry quite a thrill.

Before the Tech game Gilmore had

Before the Tech game Gilmore had been regarded as the sort of fullback who could get a few yards when it was needed—the kind of guy you like to have at fullback when it's fourth down, two yards to go, and the opposing team is holding.

Since last Saturday he has stepped into the limelight as a lad who can be trusted to run end, smash off tackle, hit the center of the line, and dodge the secondary when he gets past the line of scrimmage, which happens quite a lot.

Right after the Tech game the re-

Right after the Tech Right after the Tech game the reporters called on Harry Mehre for a statement. He praised all his boys and then went into a talk about Gilmore. "Did you notice Gilmore out there today?" Harry smiled. The next day he was still talking about Gilmore. When Harry has a lot to say about one of his players, that young man is on his way up.

STAPPER MANY. STARRED EARLY.

Earlier in the year Gilmore stepped out as a star. Against Yale he reeled off yard after yard. Single-handedly he scored Georgia's final touchdown after an advance of almost the length of the field. He has been used in other games this year and has come steadily along the way until right now he looks like first-string fullback.

YANKEE.

Gilmore is a Massachusetts Yankee, as the boys who are still fighting the Civil War say. His home is in Westboro, Mass., and he attended school at Worcester Military Academy, where he met Sam Brown, Albany (Ga.) lad who now plays with him in the Buildog backfield.

When the two finished at Worcester they decided to come south together and attend the University of Georgia. So they registered as Buildogs in 1929 and went out and made the freshman team.

The "fiddlin' fullback" plays in the Georgia Buildogs' orchestra during the off-season, along with his brother Loring, who came south last fall and is now 4 sophomore in the university of the sophomore in the university of the sophomore in the university and the south as the south

BOWDON, NORMAN =

Many Events To Feature Colorful Centennial of Sumter County.

By Jack Troy.

Citizens of Americus and visitors figuratively will light the candles on the 100th birthday cake of Sumter county today, as an elaborately planned program commemorating the centennial is carried out.

A few of the candles on the cake will be represented by the first football game ever played in that section of Georgia, by a barbecue, by a pageant with more than 400 citizens of Americus, descendants of the first settlers, in the cast, and by other feature events.

Americus has put on its best dress for the occasion. The gay spirit pre-vailing is reflected in the gay-colored buating and flags draped on store-fronts and suspended across the city's fronts and suspended across the city's streets.

Bowdon State College, coached by Bud Harris, former Howard College star player, meets Ike Cowart's Norman Park College eleven, embracing several former Oglethorpe players in its lineup. Cowart is a former Mercer University star athlete.

Both Bowdon and Norman have fine records this season. They are among the leaders in their class. And today's game should be good. It's bound to be, for isn't it the feature event of the day?

In Captain Bill Smith, fullback, and Kintz, quarterback, particularly, Coach Harris has a pair of fine backs. Smith is a powerful, hard-driving runner; Kintz is fast and elusive.

The beauty of having Kintz at quarterback is that he was at Notre Dame for a time. That's where Bull Harris discovered him.

Kintz was struggling in freshman football at Notre Dame when Harris visited South Bend for a summer's instruction in the Irish system. Kintz was regarded by the coaches as being too light for the squad. Harris didn't think he was too light, so he told Kintz about Bowdon. And now he's the quarterback, and a good one, too.

BOLDEN, YOUNG PLAY. BOLDEN, YOUNG PLAY.

BOLDEN, YOUNG PLAY.

Jeff Bolden, Sleepy Young and other former tryouts at Oglethorpe will be seen in action for Norman.

The huge pageant will depict the growth of Americus from a wilderness to the present live-wire and evergeowing community.

Frank Hooper Sr., prominent Atlanta attorney and former resident of Americus, is to deliver an address.

Henry Allen, Americus newspaperman and leader in preparations for the observance of the centennial, writes that all is in readiness for a memorable occasion.

LIVELY OLDSTER.

Today Sumter county is going to be quite a lively oldster in spite of the weight of its 100 years. They have been 100 eventful years, and there will be a lot of pleasure and pride in the recounting today and tonight. Many former residents are returning to join with the town folk in celebrating the centennial, and others from adjoining towns will be present to take part in the gayety.

Texan Gets Decision Over Davis; Jennings Beats National League Attendance Off

CHICAGO, Dec. 8 .- (49)-Attend ance at National league baseball games during the 1931 season showed a decrease of 15 per cent as compared wrestling match at the city auditorium. The eard was witnessed by several thousand fans, despite unfavorable weather conditions.

a decrease of 15 per cent as compared with the previous year.

This was disclosed in the report of John A. Heydler, president, at the annual league meeting today.

The falling off in receipts, Heydler said, was due as much to the St. Louis Cardinals' domination of the race, as to the economic depression.

Barney Dreyfuse, president of the Pittsburgh club, was re-elected vice Pittsburgh club, was re-elected vice president of the clder league, and the schedule meeting date was changed from February 9 to February 2.

With the count one fall each and both wrestlers going at top speed, using forearm blows, open hands and bare fists, Davis landed a "knockout" blow on Harper's left jaw and sent him reeling to the canvass. Davis was ordered to his corner and Referee Horace Lanford raised Harper's hand in token of victory. It stopped the match after six minutes and many of the spectators rushed to Harper's corner and shook his hand.

In the semi-final, Sun Jennings, the Cherokee Indian, won in straight falls over Nazarino Poggi, the speedy Italian. The first fall was accomplished in 18 minutes with a body slam. Jennings came back to win the second fall in three minutes with a series of flying tackles and a body slam.

The Davis-Harper match started off slow with neither having any advantage. After 32 minutes in which few holds had been obtained Davis secured a hook-scissors and won the first fall. PYLE ENTERTAINS: LIKES TROJANS

Harper came back strong and was the aggressor during the remainder of the match. He secured a number of armlocks, headlocks and punished Davis no little with the grapevine. Harper butted Davis out of the ring and after 21 minutes of good wrestling threw the big Virginia football star to the canvass with a body slam.

There was plenty of action in the last six minutes, before Harper was given the match. The wrestlers had the crowd on its feet when the end came, so tense was the excitement. MANY MONIKERS.

Pyle is looking to the future. He is to have a great sports carnival at the World Fair in Chicago in 1933. He is not ready to divulge details. He is to spend the next year and a half, the half abroad, in preparing for the event.

Protection by Preparedness.

Chick Mechan, president of the American Football Coaches' Association and leader of New York University's grid teams, in an interview has outlined a credo which should be popular with the myriad friends of the pigskin game who at this season of the year must gird themselves against the inevitable chant of overemphasis. Bluntly, Mechan lays the mounting injuries and ills to the football-minimizers, who have forced curtailment of spring practice and shelled the game from all angles, breaking down the organization and expert direction which are the great safeguards for young athletes against injury. for young athletes against injury.

or young athletes against injury.

The Violets' pilot has been anticipated by Princeton's agitators in restoring the prestige of spring practice. That's the time when the correct methods of blocking tackling and running can be leisurely and painstakingly taught. No man is used when out of condition, the air is free of tension, and the scrimmages are carried on in the nonhysterical spirit.

on in the nonhysterical spirit.

As long as colleges permit an athlete to play football in the fall and baseball in the spring, there should be no complaint against spring football. It takes no more time from study, and on the positive side, as Meehan points out, toughens the fiber and builds up morale for the hectic fall season. It will not be surprising if, in spite of the concern over injuries, the pendulum now swings back to more spring and early fall practo more spring and early fall prac-

In the east. Columbia's court team, which has won the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league title for two consecutive years, has opened its schedule and the other quintets will soon be in stride.

In the Big Ten, where basketball flourishes to a point set only by seating accommodations in the various gymns and field houses, Northwestern is preparing to defend the first conference crown, the east of the Big Six set; Wyoming drummajored the Rocky Mountain conference, and Washington, winner of the morthern division on the coast, added the championship by winning two of the three games from California in the titular series. Tech High defeated the Cadets for the Atlanta title but earlier in the season the Smithies waived all rights to a G. I. A. A. title because the eligibility of several of the players had been questioned. The matter has since been straightened out and the players completed the season.

The Dartmouth Alumni trophy, now in the G. M. C. trophy room, will be presented to the winner of the G. M. A.-Lanier High game. The trophy was placed in competition a few years ago and will become the permanent possession of the team winning it three times. Don Burnham, president of the Atlanta Dartmouth Alumni, will present the cup soon after the game is over.

G. M. C., winner of the title in 1920 G. M. C., winner of the title in 1923 and 1930, has two legs on the cup, while Tech High has one. Now Lanier and G. M. A. have the chance of gaining one-third possession, with a victory Saturday.

Baseball by Armchair?

Baseball by Armchair?

The baseball fans who have relied on their mind-pictures to round out the radio accounts of ball games may have to stir again next season.

The magnates in session in Chicago may decide that baseball's home guard has done them no good. To compensate for the loss of revenue, broadcasting companies are to be charged privilege fees—an admission fee for their loud-speaker patrons.

That solution may or may not work out, if it is passed at the meeting, but with television lurking in the offing, more puzzling problems of caring for the absentees will be around soon.

The earning power of football has far outdistanced that of any other sport. Based on the probable receipts of $400,000 from the Army-Navy game on Saturday, and a few scattered benefits on other gridirons, the charity organizers estimate receipts of more than $1,000,000 from about two-score games, all played in less than a month's time, not more than one or two days a week.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—(R)—
The final government report of the season was the main feature in to-day's cotton market, which was quieter than usual on such days. The government's final estimate of the crop was 16,918,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, which was about 300,000 bales smaller than had been looked for.

The market, which had declined 4

The market, which had declined 4 to 5 points in the early trading prior to the release of the report, advanced 14 points after the report was received, but later on eased off 5 to 7 points from the top owing to wenkings in stocks and uncertainty as to what congress might do in the way of legislation affecting trade.

After ruling quiet most of the afternoon the market weakened in the late trading in sympathy with a break in stocks and made new lows 17 to 19 points down from the highs and closed steady at the bottom, showing net declines for the day of 6 to 9 points.

Bright Spots in Business BY THE UNITED PRESS.

Chicago steel trade improves slightly as price increases for first quarter deliveries are announced. A substantial gain in workers in the automobile field overcame losses in other groups and brought total employment in Cleveland for November above that for October.

Locomotive orders now under way at the Schenectady plant of the American Locomotive Company are expected to add about $700,000 to pay rolls within the next year.

Missouri Pacific railroad car loadings for the week ended December totaled 21,844 cars, against 20.437 cars in the preceding week.

Emerson's Bromo Seltzer, Inc., declared extra dividends of 50 cents each on the Class A and B stocks in addition to the regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad loadings for the week ended December 5 totaled 7,188 cars, against 6,712 cars in the preceding week.

NEW YORK, Dec. S.—Today's session provided a sharp disappointment not only by its failure to be moved by favorable interstate commerce commission rate decision of yesterday but by its complete indifferdent's message and to indications that congress would expedite action on specific recommendations contained in the message. It chose rather to take its cue from and verse action on New Haven dividend and to prospect of similar action by New York Central.

In the light of today's market action some revision of appraisal of neither the continued presence of pressure and the continued presence of pressure in the higher levels of the recent trading range. It should similarly recognise the apparent presence of buying support at times when its absence on several recent occasions might well have resulted in precipitate declines.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(P)—After holding fairly steady during the graph of trading and advancing slightly on smaller government crop figures than expected, cotton weakened today.

July contracts, after selling up to 6.14 or 13 points net higher, broke to 5.97 and closed at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 2 to 6 points.

The opening was steady 1 point higher to 3 points lower.

The official crop figures proved under the average of recent private reports, and when the trading was resumed after its publication, the market advanced on covering. December sold up to 6.10 and May to 6.50, making net advances of about 12 to 13 points on the active positions. The demand tapered off and selling increased later. December broke to 5.95 and May to 6.34 in the late trading in the day.

The government report estimated thave resulted in precipitate declines.

TRADE TRENDS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. COTTON—The Egyptian government estimates the cotton crop of Egypt at the equivalent of 1,290,000 American 478-pound bales, cable advices to the New York Cotton Exchange Service said. This estimate is alightly smaller than the government forecast of October 5, which put the crop at the equivalent of 1,333,000 American bales.

PLOOR COVERING—Stabilization of prices in the hard-surface floor coverings industry has reacted favorably on the volume of sales in the last few days, manufacturers report.

STEEL—The American Steel Metal Market in its weekly review of the iron and steel industry says: "Apart from usual and practically inevitable year-end or holiday slipping, the steel trade in all probability has left its low point behind be just after the middle of October. As seasonal increase after the turn of the year is likely to be mild, the increase may be continued indefinitely instead of a peak heing reached in March or April, with subsequent recession, as is the usual experience." The publication revised last week's estimate of ingot output from 28 per cent to 29 per cent, and placed this week's activities at 28 per cent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 .- (P)-Although there were some indications of improvement, especially in the rails, the bond market zigged and zagged today, and ended the session by marking down the average for 20 leading utilities to another new low for the year.

Many of the railway obligations vere substantially up during most of the day, and held some of their gains at the close.

Total sales were $9,955,000, or $253,000 under yesterday.

Encouragement for the transportation loans was furnished by yesterday's interstate commerce ruling which granted freight rate increases which granted freight rate increases to the carriers and permission to form their own pool, in their own way, to aid the weaker roads.

Among rail bonds closing with good gains were Atlantic Coast Line first 4s, Baltimore & Ohio first 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s, series A; Illinois Central 4 3-4s, and Kansas City Southern firsts 3s. All the Wabash loans were up.

The utilities looked better at midday, but were generally sold for losses just before the close. The industrials just about held their own with yesterday's trading.

Practically all United States government loans were fractionally off.

U. S. GRAIN EXPORTS DECREASE IN WEEK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(P)—Grain exports last week from the United States amounted to 1,683,000 bushels against 1,947,000 bushels the previous week and 1.342,000 bushels during the corresponding week of last year.

Commerce department figures today gave the following comparisons between last week's exports and those of the week before.

Wheat 1,469,000 bushels against 1,754,000; barley 159,000 against 4,000; corn 24,000 against 110,000; oats 31,000 against 79,000; no exports of reaware reported for either week onts 31,000 against 19,000; no exports of rye were reported for either week. Canadian grain exports last week from United States ports amounted to 478,000 bushels against 203,000 the week before, while exports of North American wheat flour were 221,000 barrels against 113,000 barrels.

SHARES ON CURB AGAIN DECLINE

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER. NEW YORK, Dec. 8 .- (AP)-The slow decline in curb market shares slow decline in curb market shares was virtually uninterrupted today.

Small losses predominated at the finish, and a few thinly traded issues appeared at substantially lower levels. The turnover of 260,000 shares was about 20,000 less than yesterday's.

Utilities again were under pressure. Electric Bond & Share lost about a point. Utilities Power & Light sold at 21-2, a new low, but closed at 3, off only 1-4 of a point. Middle West Utilities yielded fractionally.

In the industrials, Aluminum Company dropped 5 points to a new low at 621-2.

Oils held up better than most Oils held up better than most groups. Standard of Indiana and Gulf were steady, and Humble and Imperial lost fractions.

EXCHANGE SUSPENDS PALMER & COMPANY

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(P)—The New York Stock Exchange today announced the suspension of Palmer & Company for insolvency.

The firm was one of the smaller stock exchange houses, maintaining three offices in New York and one in Boston. Dividend Declared.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(P)—West-ern Union Telegraph Company today declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50, placing the stock on a $6 basis against $8 previously. The reduction complied with a recommendation of the execu-tive committee made in October when wages were cut 10 per cent.

Wall Street Briefs. George W. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Co., said profits of the company for the first ten months this year were greater than for the corresponding period of 1930.

The Republic Steel Corp. has received a contract for the Radie City project in New York city to supply all the motal is th, corner beading, whre lath and sheet metal for ventilating ducts.

Page Steel & Wire Co., a subsidiary of the American Chain Co., has resumed full-time work at its Adrian, Mich., factory.

The victors returned to their caves after the most glorious raid in all their memory. It marked Om-at as the greatest of chiefs. But that fierce warrior well knew that he had won largely because of the presence of his strange ally. And Jar-don, the stranger, who had at first been impressed with the friendly and peaceable spirit of his hosts, now marveled at their terrible savagery. He little guessed he was being entertained by a ferocious tribe which never, before the coming of Tarzan, had allowed a stranger among them.

Om-at now had the Ho-don prisoners brought before him. Each he questioned as to the fate of Tarzan. All told the same story—he had been caught and escaped. The last warrior, however, had been in the temple when a creature came, claiming to be the son of a god. Then he told the events after that and ended: "With my own eyes
I saw that he our priests addressed as Dor-ulOtho, was the Terrible Man who had been a prisoner in my war-party and whom you had called oner in my war-party and whom you had called Tarzan-jad-guru. But these things I understand not; they are for the priests to interpret."

After his escape from the sentence of death Tarran knew that every man's hand in the city of
A-lur must now be against him. But he had no intention of leaving before his quest was completed.
There was only one place he knew where he thought he could be safe until the excitement and search for him diminished. That was the Forbidden Garden. Depending solely upon his memory to guide him, he started from the temple through the underground corridors, trying to retrace the way he had been led to trial before his enemy, the high priest.

chief, it suggested that perchance Tarzan was still alive in the City of Light. He pondered the subject awhile and then, rising, beckoned to the stranger, "Jar-don," he said, "come with me." He led the way to a high cliff, and when they stood upon the ridge, the chief of the hairy pithecanthropi pointed down into the valley toward the city of A-lur, gleaming in the light of the western sun. "There is Tarman-jad-guru," he said, and Jar-don, the mysterious stranger, sometow understood.

On Eastern Team

Hickman, McEver

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 8.—(P)
Two of Tennessee's football stars, Herbert Hickman, guard, and Gene McEver, halfback, today joined the east squad, which will play the west in the annual benefit game for the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children at San Francisco, New Year's Day.
Their acceptances were received by Andy Kerr, Colgate coach, who is alsembling the east eleven.
Kerr rates Hickman as the best guard he has seen since Jack Cannon, of Notre Dame. McEver, he said, is one of the season's finest backfield men.

Along with the pair, Art Schiebei, 215-pound Colgate tackle, also joined Kerr's team.

Hightlights Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM, Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.-President Hoover's message to congress contained everything favorable that the Street had expected, but liquidation and speculative selling was resume in the market following its publics tion owing to a number of unfavor able surprises which included the failure of a stock exchange firm and omission of the New Haven dividend.

One unfavorable influence, of which some of the leading speculators had knowledge, was that the steel business knowledge, was that the steel business has shown a further contraction, and this more than anything else forced Steel common down to a new low record price for the bear market.

The failure of the New York Stock Exchange firm was a complete surprise and brought about some repercussions in the market, the chief of which was a drop of 10 points in the price of International Sait stock.

President Hoover's proposals for alleviating the transportation situation were constructive but the omission of the New Haven dividend, when only a reduction had been expected, caused that issue to break more than only a reduction had been expected, caused that issue to break more than four points, thus unsettling the entire railroad department and inducing talk of the possibility of New York Central taking similar action. Central stock broke more than four points to a new low price.

The immediate proposal of a bill following the president's message calling for the formation of a reconstruction finance corporation with capital of $500,000,000 subscribed by the government, with the right to issue $1,500,000,000 of debenture bonds, met with favor in the Street but was more than offset by the unfavorable railroad developments.

than offset by the untavorable railroad developments.

The decision of the I. C. C. giving the railroads the recently increased freight rates without the pooling provision injected strength to railroad bonds early in the day but they subsequently turned weak when the New Haven passed its dividend.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—(R)—
More than 200 amateur and professional golfers wound up practice today for the start tomorrow of the second annual $7.500 San Francisco tournament, billed as the national open match play championship.
Headed by Billy Burke, national open champion, and Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, Mexico, defending titleholder, most of the outstanding professionals of the country will tee off at the Lake Merced course in the first round of the 36-hole qualifying test.
The second round to determine the 32 qualifiers will be held Thursday.

Besides Burke and Diegel, other stars include Walter Hagen, Al Espinosa, Aubrey Boomer, of England; Tom Creacy, of Albany, N. Y., Professional Golfers' Association champion; Horton Smith, Gene Sarazen, George Von Elm, Craig Wood, Wiffy Cox, Harry Cooper, John Golden, Paul Runyan and the Dutra brothers, Olin and Mortie. Observers rated each of this group as having an even chance at the $1,500 top money.

Three noted linksmen were absent for the start of the winter tournament season. Tom Armour, British open champion, and Bill Mehlhorn filed entries, but had not appeared today. Johnny Farrell, a former national open champion, decided to continue his honeymoon and left for Los Angeles, there to take boat to Honolulu. Among crack amateurs who will seek tournament honors are H. Chandler Egan, of Medford, Ore., twice national titleholder, and Johnny Dawson, of Chicago.

International competition will be offered from several quarters. In addition to the Englishman, Boomer, three Japanese pros are R. Asami of Yokohama, present champion of Nokohama, present champion of his country; T. Miyamoto, of Osaks, titleholder in 1929 and 1930, and K. Yasuda, of Tokyo, five times runnerup. Big Tusko Hiccoughs; Whisky Held as Cause

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 8.— (UP)—Tusko, the world's biggest elephant, hiccoughed tonight while his trainers desperately sought a remedy.

Tusko drank 10 gallons of whisky in three gulps the other day. He blinked and started to hiccough. He hasn't stopped since. A housewife sent word that Tusko should drink about 30 gallons of skim milk very slowly. His trainers rejected the remedy. Tusko drinks nothing slowly.
